

SHOULD

DAILY?

By Bob Walsh

A typical call received on an Observer telephone these days is apt to involve the question, "Are you going to publish a daily?" The voice then will say, "My subscription to a certain daily is running out and I don't want to renew if you are going to publish one."

What should we say?

Your Observer has been published along magazine lines, embodying a condensed review of past news, quality pictures of events and people, a preview of things to come (including the most accurate and complete television schedule available in this area), a variety of special services such as the Community Calendar, the most thorough local coverage for sale in any area of the county, leading national commentators, timely features, and a sincere effort at constructive editorials.

We mention these not as a pitch for your approval but as a reminder of what we attempt. To do so is important because the change to a daily may not be popular with many who have been content with the package we have provided. In fact we know there are many who prefer that we revert to a weekly because they were happy with a compact news medium which they could sit down with once a week at their leisure and keep informed.

The reason we went semi-weekly was that we feared our paper was becoming too crowded, and that there was no space for improvement. We were exploding at the seams and required room for the addition of features. The semi-weekly was our only answer with our available equipment.

Today we are faced with that same problem. We are confident that we can add much to your reading pleasure and provide a far more extensive news and information service if we add pages. This can be done by loading our current format in crowded fashion or by adding issues.

To add a single issue and become tri-weekly does not seem practical. It would be just as easy to become a daily, and that we can readily do if we are convinced that our readers, and enough additional subscribers to justify the effort, want us to make such a move.

The Observer has one of the most modern publishing plants in the nation, a fact which many of you may not know. It attracts visitors from all nations of the world and all states of our country. Much of what is new in the publishing world has been pioneered by the Observer staff. Some equipment has been used by Observer craftsmen before it was on the open market and still was in the experimental stage.

This advanced thinking is continuing within our walls and new machinery that is even better than that which has produced our work in recent years is being moved in weekly. Typesetters that produce copy on photographic paper instead of on lead are being tried.

to cooperate in this program.

OFFICERS INSTALLED. On Monday evening of this week new officers of the Chief Cornplanter Post, American Legion, were installed.

Present for the ceremonies were (l. to r.) Floyd Ahlquist, new sr. vice commander; Siegfried Anderson, historian; Norman Perry, finance officer; Edward Nasman, present jr. vice commander who is resigning; Ben Clifton, jr. vice commander; J. Edward Stahl, retiring commander; Gerald P. Simpson, newly installed commander; James Peterson, new adjutant; Robert Anderson, chaplain; Charles Kirtchartz, service officer; Homer Alexander, installing officer and commander of the 28th District of Pennsylvania from Fredonia, Penna.; and Elja Olds, adjutant of the 28th district from Sharon. Not present for the picture was Robert Schatzle, newly elected sergeant-at-arms.

The ad comes out of the machine ready for the paper. It does not have to be assembled on a stone or on an art table.

A press that will handle ads in three colors is due in a few days. A machine that is used by such publications as Life Magazine, the Saturday Evening Post, and the New York Times to assemble, stitch, and trim their magazines soon will be under our roof. Fast composing machines that turn out copy at the rate of fifteen lines a minute, faster than three or four average-speed Linotypes, have been used by us for years and newer ones are due this month.

There are many other innovations in the Observer office, and planned for our office, which we could mention here, but this is enough to serve our immediate purpose. That purpose is to partially acquaint you with the plans and capabilities of your paper so that you may be better informed if you wish to help us make a decision concerning expansion.

Whatever you want, we have the personnel and the equipment to provide it. If it is a quality weekly you prefer we can include it in our growing chain. If you like the semi-weekly approach, we will continue it and will attempt to make improvements.

If your answer is "Yes! Publish a daily," we will give you one that will be different in many respects. It will have coverage not found in any paper in Northwestern Pennsylvania or Southwestern New York. It will have all that the current Observer offers and many additional services.

This we are equipped to do. This we are staffed to do. This we are willing to do, if you want it.

We would like to hear your comments.

Matter of Fact . . .

Having and Eating The Cake

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

On the eve of his departure for active campaigning, Vice President Richard M. Nixon went on the air to suggest among other things, that there ought to be a "cutoff date" for discussion of the so-called religious issue, either by himself or by Sen. John F. Kennedy.

"The best way candidates can keep it out of the campaign is by not talking about it," said the Vice President.

As the news from Texas indicates, Sen. Kennedy did not immediately heed his rival's advice. He could not do so, in fact, and for a quite simple reason. The reason is that Kennedy is now the target of an immensely widespread, evidently well-financed and increasingly open anti-Catholic campaign.

Kennedy cannot remain a silent target, when the attack on him on pure religious ground is already reaching the proportions of the attack on Alfred E. Smith in 1928. It is not the sort of thing that can be shoved under the rug, by a "cutoff date" for discussion on the subject -- which will not "cutoff" the anti-Catholic campaign itself.

In character, the campaign takes many forms. There is much gutter stuff, like a widely circulated pamphlet, "To Kill Protestants," in which an organization called the Pilgrim Tract Society suggests that the Catholic church may well be preparing a new St. Bartholomew's Eve in the United States. There are also outwardly respectable manifestations, like the National Citizens Conference for Religious Liberty, presided over by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale.

Even Dr. Peale's outfit has its peculiarities. At the organized meeting in Washington, one of the chief speakers was Dr. L. Nelson Bell, who proclaimed that the key issue in this campaign was "freedom of Americans from Romish influence." The fact that the organization was specifically keyed to the election was indicated when the organization secretary, the Rev. Mr. Donald Gill, told the organizing meeting that $5,000 was already in hand, but "we will need at least $25,000 before the campaign is over."

When subsequently questioned, the Rev. Mr. Gill refused to release either the list of contributors, or the list of participants in the organization meeting in Washington. But the Rev. Dr. George M. Docherty, pastor of the New York Ave. Presbyterian Church here, who was one of the invited participants, expressed the opinion that "this move came from right wing Republicans."

Commenting on the formation of the National Citizens Conference, the Vice President's Press Secretary, Herbert Klein, said that Nixon would not repudiate support from this quarter, but deplored the introduction of the religious issue into the campaign. A comparable attitude is revealed in the case of the Rev. Mr. Jess Moody, of the First Baptist Church in Owensboro, Ky.

The Rev. Mr. Moody is the circulator of the anti-Catholic document falsely attributed to Thomas Jefferson, whom James Reston, of "The New York Times," rather surprisingly tracked down to the office of the Republican National Chairman, Sen. Thruston Morton. He was in the Morton office by invitation of one of the Vice President's campaign assistants, William Stover. He says that at the beginning of their meeting, Stover and Sen. Morton "straightly charged him" not to discuss the religious issue with them, and there was no such discussion.

But when interviewed by telephone, the Rev. Mr. Moody further stated that he was never "straightly charged" not to discuss the religious issue elsewhere and later on. He added that he was indeed "going to do so in a discreet manner."

That just about sums up the present position. On the one hand, the Vice President and his staff have had nothing to do with organizing the anti-Catholic campaign. But on the other hand, Nixon is the campaign's intended beneficiary, and he will in fact benefit by it materially in some parts of the country. Yet he has not repudiated the support of the campaigners, as he would certainly repudiate the support of James Hoffa, for instance. And his aides, when in contact with the campaigners, have not asked them to stop campaigning.

It remains to be seen whether this is a politically tenable position. A similar position would certainly not be tenable for Sen. Kennedy. Suppose the Brooklyn "Tablet," perhaps the most influential Catholic newspaper, were now calling on Catholics to vote for Kennedy on religious grounds, instead of attacking Kennedy on political grounds. If this were the case, Kennedy would certainly be clamorously accused

With The Kennedy Campaign In Texas

By Marquis Childs

WITH THE KENNEDY CAMPAIGN IN TEXAS. -- What has now become evident is that in perhaps as many as 15 to 18 states in the South and the Midwest Senator John F. Kennedy's religion has become a major factor in the campaign. There are those who believe it can be the decisive factor determining whether he wins or loses in November.

One of these states is Texas with its 24 electoral votes. Kennedy is campaigning hard from one side of the state to the other in the belief that his personal appeal and a discussion of the paramount issues of war, peace, national security, the growth of the economy will override the question of his religion.

But it is difficult or impossible to gauge its effect. Like a fire in a coal mine, as one Kennedy strategist put it, it can be suppressed at one point only to go on smoldering far underground and out of reach. That is one reason why the polls -- whether those that presume to test nationwide sentiment or the small house-to-house samples -- are likely to be more wrong this time than ever before. For the average American is reluctant to say that this is why he will not vote for the Democratic candidate.

Despite several efforts to make his own viewpoint clear there is still confusion over Senator Kennedy's own position. It is very simple. For those who oppose him simply because he is a Catholic he says that he can make no response. This violates the provision in the Constitution that there shall be no religious test for office. Moreover it is like saying that you oppose a man because of the color of his eyes or the cut of his hair, as Kennedy sees it. He was born a Catholic, he lives a Catholic, and that is that.

But when it comes to the relationship between the Catholic Church and the state and the question of religious freedom Senator Kennedy is prepared to of trying to have his cake and eat it too, if he merely said the subject ought not to be discussed or failed to repudiate the "Tablet."

The Next Voice You Hear . . .

answer any and all questions. He believed that he had long since made his position on the separation of church and state unmistakably clear. And he and those helping him map his campaign thought the question had been laid to rest in the West Virginia primary, where he won handsomely despite an attack on his religion. And West Virginia is a state in which the Catholic population is put at five percent or less.

The question of the separation of church and state is a broad field covered by a mass of literature. One of the latest contributors to the literature is Bishop James Pike, the Episcopal Bishop of Northern California, who spoke at the Michigan State Fair on the day before Kennedy's appearance there. Both in his speech and in his recently published book, "Roman Catholic in the White House," Bishop Pike takes the view that to oppose Kennedy merely because he is a Catholic is bigotry.

That is what Dr. Norman Vincent Peale and the other Protestant ministers, in forming the National Conference of Citizens for Religious Freedom, seem to be doing. In his Los Angeles press conference Kennedy interpreted their statements as impugning his loyalty.

But what Bishop Pike goes on to do in his book is discuss the position of the Catholic Church in America in detail. He raises the question of the priority of a long series of Papal encyclicals affirming the church's authority over every area of life and its inherent supremacy in the religious field as against the "American interpretation" as put forward by some Catholic theologians in this country. Under this interpretation the separation of church and state is accepted as a fact of American life.

That is the area in which Kennedy is prepared to discuss the whole question. His statements of the past year have been in line with this interpretation. As one result he has come under attack from some of the publications of his own church.

Whatever the moral, theological and philosophical arguments, this has become also a matter of practical politics. In the Pacific Northwest, for example, it has been assumed that the liberal tradition of the past still prevailed.

But in the State of Washington there is, as Kennedy discovered when he passes through, an undercurrent of disquiet. Albert D. Rosellini, running for re-election, and five of the other statewide candidates are Catholics. This seems to raise the question in an acute form. A somewhat similar situation exists in Iowa.

Some reports of Kennedy's reaction, when questions on his religion are put to him, have him angry and outraged. Rather he is puzzled and profoundly disturbed. When he says that the issues in this campaign are as significant as those of 1860 he believes just that. And he sees the question of religion as a kind of smoke screen obscuring any realistic discussion of the issues and the far-reaching problems of America in the world today.

Today and Tomorrow . . .

THE ABORTED CAMPAIGN

By Walter Lippmann

Mr. Kennedy has been trying, but as yet without much success, to make the central issue of the campaign the decline of American power and influence in the world. Almost certainly Mr. Nixon is himself worried about this decline. But for the purpose of the campaign he cannot admit that there is a decline, and consequently that there is any issue. For that would reflect on President Eisenhower under whom, it must be said, this country was never so prosperous, never so powerful, never so much respected and beloved.

Mr. Nixon's campaign problem is how to reconcile the claims of our pre-eminence with the facts in Japan, Okinawa, Berlin, Laos, Iran, the Congo, Cuba, and a lot more of Latin America. The solution adopted is ingenious--if it works. All the troubles in all these places are due to the wicked machinations of the communists. Against all these machinations we have protested Mr. Herter has protested, the voluble Press Officer of the State Department has protested almost every hour on the hour. We have stood up stoutly to Mr. Khrushchev, and now look at him. He cannot leave Manhattan

Island, and there is not a single one of his wicked machinations against which we have not protested. We have a long and splendid record of protests.

The ingenuity of this solution lies to pretending that there is no connection, on the one hand, between anything we have done or failed to do and, on the other hand, the spread of Khrushchev's wicked machinations to the Far East to Africa and to the Americas. Anyone who says there is a connection between Russian expansion and our recession is selling America short, whereas it is a law of nature that America is always the strongest power. The trick is to inveigh against the wicked machinations, which succeed solely because of the wickedness of the Communists and not because of any weakness, any default, in our own virtuous selves. This diverts attention from the examination of our own responsibility for our declining position in the world.

It is not surprising that Mr. Kennedy has as yet had no great success in raising the issue of our decline and the responsibility for it. It is an unpopular issue. To raise it is to bring bad news, to point to the successes achieved by our adversary and to defeats suffered by ourselves. To raise it is to demand hard and stern action to halt the decline and to reverse it. Mr. Kennedy is telling the truth, indeed he is telling the saving truth, but it is unpleasant to be told it.

Yet until he succeeds in raising this issue which is the supreme issue before the country, the campaign will be frustrated and aborted. There is, as we all know, no great interest in the campaign. Why not? In the last analysis, it seems to me, because the country has not been made to feel that anything very big is at stake.

Kennedy has been trying to say that something very big is at stake and that much that is very important needs to be done. Nixon's answer is that nothing much is wrong, but that he will do all that Kennedy wants to do and that he will do it better. Kennedy is up against the tactics of frustration. They are designed not to clarify and resolve the issues but to fudge them and to smother them.

It will be interesting to see whether in their television meeting Kennedy can achieve a breakthrough, and can bring about a true debate on the issue of our power and influence in the world.

NEWS IN BRIEF

WARREN GETS IMPROVED RAIL AND AIR SERVICE

The Warren Railway Express Agency will close October 3, after being in operation for over fifty years. Effective Oct. 31 of this year, the Warren-Youngsville area will be served with Pickup and Delivery Service direct from their terminal headquarters in Jamestown.

Proprietor Frank Nichols of the local agency urges all those who desire information on the consolidation of the shipping services to phone the Warren agency at RA3-4710. After Oct. 31 anyone desiring express service information may make toll-free calls to the Jamestown office.

All local employees of the Warren Agency will be transferred to the Jamestown Agency where they will continue their express duties.

Mr. Nichols stated that the consolidation will result in a much needed improved service on all inbound and outbound traffic in the Warren area. This change is a part of a system-wide plan for overall improvement in transportation to the shipping public.

The consolidation and the eventual relocation of the Warren office means, however, that some areas in this district will lose partial service. Mr. Nichols added that areas such as Pleasant township and the Warren rural delivery routes will not have Pickup and Delivery Service and will have to make transaction through the Jamestown office, unless other arrangements are made.

DEDICATION OF RESERVOIR SET FOR LATE OCTOBER

The Board of Directors of the Warren Area Chamber of Commerce announces that the formal dedication of the Allegheny River Reservoir Project in Kinzua will be held on Saturday, October 22. Between 120 and 150 invitations will be sent out by the Chamber to local, state, and national officials.

Tentative plans for the ceremony, now being formulated by the Chamber's Area Planning Committee, include a luncheon in Warren before the actual affair at the dam site at 3 p.m. It was announced that New York state officials will also be requested to assist in the ceremony.

The Army Corp on Engineers has pledged its full support to the event, which would attract hundreds from the immediate and surrounding areas.

In conjunction with the dedication of the project, the Board has also entertained a proposal to name the dam the Chief Cornplanter Dam or the Cornplanter Dam. Presently it is known as the Kinzua Dam to area residents, and is called the Allegheny River Reservoir Project in the federal government.

SIDEWALK FESTIVAL TO BE HELD OCT. 7 AND 8

The Warren Retail Division of the Chamber of Commerce announces that the Third Annual Sidewalk Festival and Street Auction will be held this year on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 7 and 8. Down-town merchants, service groups, and churches will once more have an opportunity to display their wares on the streets, an attractive setting which has been labeled as a great success by the Chamber in the past years.

Beginning Friday the following sections of streets will be closed off: Liberty street, from Third ave. to Pennsylvania ave., and Second st., from Pennsylvania ave. to Loblaw's parking lot. This will give retailers ample room to set up their merchandise in booths in the parking spaces. Chamber member new car dealers will have a chance to display their 1961 models on the Municipal Parking lot at the foot of Liberty st.

On Monday, Oct. 3, preceeding the gala week end, forty-seven merchants of the Retail Division will distribute bogus money, each coupon worth ten cents at the Saturday Auction, for every one dollar purchase in their stores. The Auction will climax the festivities of the week end, and once more only new merchandise will be auctioned off, plus several "white elephant" items. The auctioneer will also be instructed once again to bark out that "Everything must go".

Grand Prize of the Auction is the 1961 Ford Falcon, which will be given to the highest bidder to end the Festival.

CHRISTMAS LIGHTING UNDERGOES CHANGE

For some time the Retail Division of the Chamber, sponsors of the Christmas lighting, have been considering a complete change in the annual display along the main thoroughfares of the Borough.

A decision has now been made for a long-range plan, renewing the display over a three-year period beginning the 1960 Christmas season. Upon completion of the change-over, the cross-street lights will be eliminated. The new display will include lighted Christmas trees held to light poles by brackets (top and bottom of each tree); central control switch; Municipal tree; decorated parking lots plus the ringing bells and stars which are now part of the old decoration. Total cost of the project is estimated to be $10,000 - $15,000.

This year, as a start, the Chamber plans to install approximately 103 trees beginning at Poplar on Penna. Ave. and east to Russell; Hickory St. from Penna. Ave. to Third Ave.; and Liberty St. from Penna. Ave. to Third Ave. The old cross-lighting will be installed west of Poplar on Penna. Ave. this year and part of it on Market St. also.

In view of the stringent financial problems facing the Chamber at present, it does not plan to install lights on all of the trees this year. For those that will be lighted, they are asking the owners of the business houses closest to them, in addition to a contribution toward the Christmas lighting project, to be responsible for lighting that tree by connecting an extension, which they will furnish, into their electrical outlets. This is being done to cut the cost of operation as much as possible this year.

NORTHERN AREA EXTENDS ADULT REGISTRATION

Believing that many people failed to report for adult education registration last Monday, the Northern Area school system has decided to prolong the "sign-up" period for a week.

Initial registration has shown interest in bookkeeping, typing, sewing, arts and crafts, shop, agriculture, a course in office machines, and in the general academic review course designed to assist non-graduates to prepare to take the high school equivalency tests which will lead to the High School Equivalency Diploma. If any of these courses are to be offered, a substantial increase in the number of registrants will be needed, and all who are interested are urged to consider making their interest known no later than next Monday, September 19.

Present plans call for the general office of the Eisenhower High School to be open for registration again on Monday, September 19. The hours will be from 7:00 until 9:00 p.m. Any patron who is unable to come during those hours is invited to contact the school office on any school day during regular office hours.

The schedule and tuition fees remain the same as last year. Classes will meet for three hour sessions on fourteen Monday evenings during the first semester on January 16. The basic fee is $8.00 per course with a refund of 8 per cent to all who enroll in vocational courses and who attend at least 75 per cent of class sessions.

BELL TELEPHONE OPEN HOUSE

Residents of Warren and vicinity will have an opportunity next week to inspect the Randolph central office in operation when the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania holds public open house at the local communications center at 5 East street.

The Bell Company building will be open for public visiting between the hours of 6:30 and 9:00 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings (September 20-21-22).

Visitors will be able to observe the intricate operations of the dial switching equipment as calls are speeded to local and out-of-town telephones and they will also meet local Bell Telephone Company employees who are responsible for the operation and maintenance of the community's steadily-growing telephone system.

Bell men and women will conduct tours of the office and explain their various duties and the functions of the operating equipment, the manager stated. Special displays will dramatize achievements of the Bell Company in keeping pace with the community's needs.

In issuing a personal invitation to Warren residents to visit the open house, it was requested that children be accompanied by adults.

NEW COACH LINES

Just recently the Warren Area Chamber of Commerce took favorable action upon request of the Capital Frontier Coach Lines, Inc., granting the motor bus company the right to operate a Washington, D. C., to Niagara Falls line through Warren. Capital Frontier has on file with the Inter-State Commerce Commission in Washington an application for a franchise to institute and operate such a motor bus route on a daily basis.

The line will cover a route through the following cities: Washington, D.C., Greencastle, Chambersburg, Shippensburg, Ft. Littleton, Mt. Union, Huntingdon, Waterstreet, Tyrone, Philipsburg, Clearfield, Penfield, St. Marys, Johnsonburg, Wilcox, Kane, Sheffield, Clarendon, Warren, all in Pennsylvania, thence through Frewsburg, Jamestown, Fredonia, Buffalo, and into Niagara Falls.

If granted the authority, it is the company's intention to initiate "through service" with no change enroute over the scenic trails of this part of the country.

The breakdown of the total attendance is as follows: 53,629 swimmers; 102,720 picnickers; and 8,064 overnight campers.

LEAVING WARREN. After having housed railway express agencies for the last half century, the Warren Railway Express Agency is closing on October 3. All employees of the local office will be transferred to the Jamestown agency where they will continue their express duties.

From left to right in the photo are Frank Nichols, H. G. Cameron, and C. A. Engle. Others not present, but who are involved in the change, are G. M. Meley, and C. T. Russo.

The old building was erected by the Adams Express Agency in the early 1900's. At that time there were several other similar agencies in Warren, including the well-known Wells Fargo Company. But in recent years, the Warren Railway Express Agency has provided the community with adequate shipping services.

CO. OFFICIAL STATES OPINION ON SCHOOL AUDITORS' "COMMENTS"

County superintendent of schools John Mallery, Jr., Thursday released a seven page report relative to the investigation of the Northern Area Jt. School Board's practices and policies as referred to in "comments" made in the Auditors' Report dated August 12. The hearing called by the county superintendent was held Monday evening at Eisenhower high school.

The school auditors -- Earl W. Capron, chairman, of Sugar Grove twp., Gerald E. Mattison of Pine Grove twp., and Jay Hinsdale of Farmington twp. -- had submitted with their August audit report a list of seven comments. In preliminary questioning Monday night, however, it was disclosed by auditors Mattison and Hinsdale that the comments were authored by chairman Capron and that they had signed same without first having read them. They did say they subscribed to the first item of the comments which referred to the belief that telephone toll costs were excessive.

Mr. Capron, although his presence at the hearing was requested, was not present.

The county superintendent in his general observations and recommendations stated that "it is not to be inferred that auditors of the school district accounts do not have the privilege of making recommendations to the board of school directors." He continued by stating that such recommendations may be in the form of a majority report or a minority report, but school auditors are primarily concerned with the fiscal status and activities of school districts and joint boards.

Mallery recommended that "because of the amount of funds expended and the many ramifications of the school program, the Northern Area Joint Board might well consider the advisability of employing a Certified Public Accountant to complete the audit of its accounts in subsequent years".

The "comments", besides objections to phone toll costs, touched upon wage tax collections, cafeteria operations, gasoline mileage records, expenses of school personnel, and sports activities.

Mr. Mallery's report took the issues one by one. In his summation he generally upheld the policies of the school board and administration, and in certain cases submitted recommendations which would make accounts and records more accurate.

Allocation To Agencies Listed By Chest Office

The Warren Community Chest this morning announced the amounts allocated to its ten member agencies for the coming year.

The goal is $88,500 and the appropriation for each is:

Warren County Council, Boy Scouts -- $12,400.

Warren County Council, Girl Scouts -- $10,625.

Y.M.C.A. -- $21,200.

Y.W.C.A. -- $11,375.

Salvation Army -- $9,900.

Warren Relief Association -- $5,575.

Family Service and Children's Aid Society -- $5,500.

Visiting Nursing Association -- $2,475.

Child Health Center -- $300.

United Service Organization (U.S.O.) -- $750.

This year's budget is eight per cent higher than the amount raised in 1959 and will allow some increases to the participating agencies. However, the grants are only 72 per cent of the total asked by the ten agencies whose budget requests amounted to $110,000.

Yesterday campaign chairman Edgar Pendelton named three vice chairmen to assist in the October drive.

They are Merle W. Kremer, vice president of Sylvania Electric, who will head the industrial and advance special gifts division; James Frantz, personnel director of United Refining Co., wholesale and retail business and professional division; Andrew Donick, manager, Pennsylvania Bureau of Employment Security, public services and residential division.

Acting upon a signed complaint by two members of the Eagles Club, the Warren borough police Thursday evening at 5 p.m. confiscated a number of chance games from that club. Fred Hamblin, the bartender on duty Sunday evening when the games were called to the attention of the police, was arrested in the raid Thursday, and will be arraigned this morning before Justice of the Peace Martha Lawson.

Chief of Police Michael Evan stated that the two men were requested to file a complaint Monday with the Justice, but they failed to do so until Thursday afternoon. When the club, located at 213 Pennsylvania ave., W., was raided that afternoon Hamblin was again in charge.

Among the various items confiscated were punchboards, and "fishbowls", also known as "Lucky Sevens". The two men registering the complaint stated that the "bowls" were being switched during the games to prevent any payoffs.

TIME TO MOVE AHEAD

Warren today has sufficient recreational activity, and enough more is being demanded, to justify the employment of a full-time director. We hasten to assure you that this does not represent a sock at the budget. The cost would be infinitesimal, especially when compared with the gains.

The use of Warren facilities is not adequate for the simple reason that there is not a centrally situated department to work full time at the job. Considering the part-time approach a tremendous upsurge is apparent, and every time a new idea is introduced the skeptics find themselves out on the limb with their laugh as the people swarm in to sign up for the service offered.

This has been so for about twenty years, a period of sacrificial experiments and examples, all of which have proved the need for a true recreation department with a full-time director. But the way has been strewn with obstacles, and progress has been slowed by fossilized thinking.

Fortunately much of this petrified stock has moved from the scene and most of the gentlemen now holding our community's reins are aware of the need for leisure time facilities and direction. They have lived with it and have seen it grow. It no longer is a stepchild, and the ball game in the street or the ninety kids in one family's backyard has ceased to be a con-doned nightmare.

THE RECORD

A look at one year of activity on Warren playgrounds and in the schools is enough to give you an inkling of what can be done. Total attendance on our playgrounds during their abbreviated period this summer was 77,038. Boys and girls registered to provide this attendance numbered 1,981. These do not include the participants in baseball and softball games.

Attendance on the playgrounds was a new record. It is gauged by taking a count three times daily, and covers forty-five days of play. Mornings provided the smallest count, 15,037 for the summer. The afternoon figure was 33,026, and the evening attendance totaled 28,975.

During those forty-five days the average attendance on Warren playgrounds was 1,712! Where would they have gone without playgrounds? Remember, the empty fields on which you once romped no longer are there. And searching for one across town in this day of the motor parade is not a healthy pastime for the small fry.

But the playgrounds are an accepted part of our life today and no one is so archaic as to openly oppose them. They actually cost very little to operate. Wages for the supervisors this year totaled $9,717. But the state paid most of this. Warren paid only $3,580.30.

ADDITIONAL ACTIVITY

There are other months than those covered by forty-five days of playground activity. And there is other kind of play than that found on the green grass. Warren has many facilities that are not fully used, and a coordinated program should be inaugurated that will pull them together.

There has been a reluctance on the part of some to encourage basketball to the same degree that the Hot Stove program is promoted. Some have said that it might harm the YMCA gymnasium schedule.

There are far more potential young basketball players in Warren than the YMCA can handle. A few more years ago than we intend to mention there was so much basketball in Warren that the Y couldn't accommodate the players. There was a league on the State Armory floor, and there was another league which used a variety of floors, including the Y, the high school, the Grace Methodist church, and the Armory.

The same can be done today, and there are even more floors.

Despite the lack of an adequate ice skating rink in Warren, forty-six days of fun on the frozen surface were enjoyed on Beaty, Lacy, and McClintock. Beaty's loss to a mid-season flood allowed it to be used only four days. But it averaged 700 a day for those four. The little Lacy rink had an average of 185 a day, and McClintock's had ninety.

Some laughed when dancing classes were offered. But 618 young people enrolled and 355 of them were there for classes over a period of 13 to 15 weeks. Total attendance, 4,971!

Gymnastic classes drew 1812, for an average of 121 per day for 15 weeks. Tennis drew 380 for an average of 20 for 19 weeks. Dramatics had 22 students for 14 weeks. Underemphasized basketball had only 18 a day for nine weeks.

BIG CHIEF PRACTICAL

Obviously the facilities will be used and there is a variety of interest if a program is rounded out and made available. We propose that the only way an adequate job can be done of planning the program, supervising the work of instructors and adult volunteers, scheduling the use of gymnasium, playgrounds, ball diamonds, softball diamonds, rinks, courts, youth canteen, and other facilities now available and still to be built, is to have a full-time director.

This will not require a large increase in the budget, because some of the work now being done piecemeal by a variety of people would be included in that director's assignments, such as that done by the present part time director. However, we are not suggesting that he (or she) take on too much of the load now carried by specialists and playground supervisors. We do suggest that the result would be more efficient, far more complete, and relatively inexpensive.

The state pays a little over 68 per cent of such salaries. A good director should be available for a minimum of $6,000. Subtracting what now is paid for the part time director, you will find that the cost to the borough would be less than $2,000. And considering some savings that would result, that can be reduced to a net cost of not much more than a $1,000.

If we do not follow this suggestion the recreation program is about to become awkward and cumbersome. The result can be a rambling, costly arrangement that can result in great dissatisfaction and unnecessary expense. In view of the rapid growth of play time fun, and considering new facilities shaping up, including waterfront activities, and programs involving greater participation by adults, we should be ready with a trained director and a fully organized program that will efficiently and economically handle the evolution of our leisure activity.

The Great Sponsor

The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company is one of the great sponsors of broadcasting, one of the earliest -- "The Firestone Hour" started on NBC Dec. 3, 1928 -- and one of the most frustrated. "The Firestone Hour," a quality program of classical and semi-classical music, was tossed off NBC after twenty-eight years there because of its low ratings, and went to ABC where it was sacrificed to high-rated junk programs in 1958.

On my lecture tours, almost invariably the first question from the floor is: "How can we get 'The Firestone Hour' back?" Well, Firestone is coming back with a quality show of a rather different kind. The last couple of years, Firestone has been experimenting boldly with the sponsorship of new shows of a strikingly fresh and original kind called "Eyewitness to History," a CBS news package. "Eyewitness" deals with breaking news as it happens. That is, when Khrushchev visits the U. S. or when Eisenhower visits India, they have the show on the air that night or maybe within the next week. (NBC has been pushing forward in this type of show, too.) ***

Up to now, TV's handling of news has been spotty. There were only the Doug Edwards roundup with snippets of film, or there were big documentaries like Ed Murrow's which had six months' preparation. "Eyewitness" attempts to get on the air with a half-hour of hot news -- Khrushchev's upcoming visit to the United Nations, for example -- with intelligent background, commentary, and analysis as well as pictures. This is a tremendously important advance in news-casting for television and Firestone has boldly decided to sponsor fifty-two weeks of "Eyewitness" at a cost of more than $4,000,000. CBS has given it the old "Person to Person" slot.

Les Midgley, the executive producer of "Eyewitness" for CBS, has for years argued that the whole structure of television programming inevitably would turn away from fiction -- the eternal merchandising of Hollywood dreams -- to fact, in short to news and features about reality. This has been the history of magazines. In the 1930's the great emphasis, the big draw in magazines, changed from fiction to factual articles.

"This major change -- from fiction to fact -- was underway last season in television, whether or not it was widely recognized," says Midgley, perhaps optimistically. "Last year we produced twenty-seven 'Eyewitness' shows for Firestone, far more than anyone expected. We started with Eisenhower in Europe, went on to Khrushchev's tour of the U.S. Ike in India and South America, the summit blow-up, and Ike's start toward Japan.

"When the story was in the United States we went on the air with live remotes and tape shot on frighteningly tight schedules. Tape and jet planes, the big technical advance for us last year, made it possible to use same-day materials from Europe. Our ratings -- to grapple with the devil straight on -- were gratifying to us, to our sponsors, and surprising to some of our own CBS people. Once we even got in the top ten of the week in 'Variety' -- that powerful India show you liked. Okay, so it WAS tenth."

The decision to sponsor "Eyewitness" for fifty-two weeks is an unusual one for any kind of show. From the point of view of the public, this is a healthier trend -- if trend it is -- of the summer.

What kind of show will it be? "A weekly show isn't going to be the same thing as a pre-empt which can be matched with a known news event," Midgley admitted. "In some ways it's going to be harder. But just as you boys get out a paper every day and 'Life' goes to bat every week hitting the pictorial value hard, 'Eyewitness' will be pointed at a big story of the week. It will be covered right up to air time with everything we've got -- live remotes, tapes, films, radio, graphics. Our aim is to present news in action centered wherever possible around some major event that lends itself to pictorial treatment by the TV cameras.

"Somebody asked me the other day how television news is going to move forward. It depends on three things: the availability of air time to cover events that deserve covering, the technical advances such as tape that are constantly enlarging our horizons, and our judgement, literacy, and skill. We have a fine air time. The technical advances of last year were highly profitable. Our staff is first-class.

"One last word. It's our view that history is a broad, broad word. I'd love to have Khrushchev laughing and ranting again and some international conferring and rioting. But I also hope to see some other history in other kinds of news -- science, sports, entertainment, even fun and fashion. After all, Beverly Aadland is a pretty historical character, too."

KDKA RADIO BROADCAST FIRST ELECTION RETURNS

Pittsburgh radio station KDKA started the broadcasting era when it reported the presidential election returns for the first time 40 years ago, according to an article in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania's Internal Affairs bulletin.

Beginning its fifth decade of service in what has become a billion-dollar-a-year industry in the U. S., the Pittsburgh station has seen radio grow from a modest 100 watt transmitter and a handful of crystal receiving set users in 1920 to 150 million radio receiving sets in use across the nation today.

The article tells about KDKA's notable "first", the broadcast of the Harding-Cox presidential election returns on the night of Nov. 2, 1920. Construction of the station by Westinghouse had begun a month earlier, the station's license application was submitted Oct. 16, 1920, and election night, little more than two weeks away, was selected as the grand opener.

The broadcast originated in a tiny shack on top of a Westinghouse building in East Pittsburgh. There was no studio, a single room accommodating the transmitting equipment, record turntable and first broadcast staff. Five miles away, in Wilkinsburg, Dr. Frank Conrad, assistant chief engineer, stood by at his experimental station to carry on if trouble developed. Broadcasting began at 6 p. m. on Election Day and continued until noon the next day, hours after Governor Cox conceded the election to Senator Harding. The broadcast caused a national sensation.

Forty years ago the few lucky radio fans listened with crystal sets and earphones. Much progress has been evidenced in forty years of improving communications. How will it be done forty years in the future?

PROGRAM PREVIEWS

OMNIBUS begins its season with NBC Nov. 13 at 5-6 p. m. with a study of the office of the President. Title is "He Shall Have Power." Dates for subsequent Omnibus shows are Dec. 11, Jan. 1, Feb. 5, March 5, March 26 and April 16.

SATURDAY NIGHT BOXING appears on the ABC network starting Oct. 8 at 10 p. m.

POTOMAC MADNESS, an NBC musical with Bob Hope, Ginger Rogers and Perry Como, will be aired Oct. 22, 8:30-9:30 p. m. Hope will portray a political candidate and the show, coincidentally, is scheduled for the night following a Nixon-Kennedy TV appearance.

EYEWITNESS TO HISTORY will be devoted to a program on Soviet Premier Khrushchev at 9 p. m. Sept. 23 on CBS stations. CBS also plans live coverage of the Soviet Premier's arrival in New York and the U. N. on Sept. 19.

NOT WITHOUT HONOR will be the first of seven historical dramatizations on NBC's Our American Heritage series. Scheduled for Friday, Oct. 21, it will star Arthur Kennedy as Alexander Hamilton and Ralph Bellamy as Thomas Jefferson, roles they played in an earlier Heritage drama "Divided We Stand" on Oct. 18, 1959.

THE STORY OF WILL ROGERS will incorporate the voice of the great American humorist himself when Project 20 produces the full-hour program on NBC next March.

CONTINENTAL CLASSROOM begins its third NBC season Sept. 26. Two courses will be offered for college credit: Modern Chemistry and Contemporary Mathematics.

CANDID CAMERA, due to premiere in a couple weeks, and the CBS network are having difficulties over who is to emcee the show. Eddie Albert was signed and wants to hang onto the job but the network seems to be grooming Arthur Godfrey for the assignment.

ELECTION COUNTDOWN, five programs being produced by NBC, will be seen on Thursday nights starting Sept. 29, at 8-8:30. Network newsmen will give regional analyses of the election campaign. And CBS has its "Presidential Countdown." Not much originality when it comes to selecting titles for programs.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER will give a 15-minute address at the national conference of Catholic Charities jubilee dinner Monday, Sept. 26 at 11:15 p. m. NBC will pre-tape the address.

THE RIGHT MAN is going to cost CBS $400,000. to produce. It's a Garry Moore special with Cliff Arquette, Teddy Roosevelt and Celeste Holm on Oct. 24.

THE EDITOR NOTES

UNICEF REACTION

Last week our Observations column suggested that the young people of this area should be sold on the idea of using their trick or treat fun as a means of collecting funds for UNICEF instead of bags full of food they don't need, and probably would be better off without. UNICEF, as you learned through Danny Kay's tv programs, and perhaps through other media, is a fund that helps the children and mothers in backward portions of our globe.

It has grown from the work of a Sunday School class which collected a few dollars to the pleasure of young people throughout the nation who now are collecting millions. In view of what a few pennies will do in the way of milk and medicine in these foreign lands, the contribution of each boy and girl as it is collected from the "frightened" neighbors is immense.

Tidioute already has such a program, and has been at it for four years. Youngsville tried it last year. The rest of us are dragging.

To be really complete the adults, through churches or organizations, should officially establish the collection and reward the young people with a Halloween wind-up in the form of appropriate food at the end of their evening's doorbell ringing.

We mention this early because the identification tags and explanatory brochures should be obtained so that the effort is official, a necessary step for obvious reasons where house-to-house collections by the big bad goblins is involved.

Already we have had some reaction to this idea and there are those who are willing to have a part in such an approach to Halloween fun. There is double value here. Not only do we help others, but we also help our own children by taking much of the selfishness out of the witches' evening.

If you are really interested, there is little use writing or calling us. It would be better to write the U. S. Committee for UNICEF, P.O. Box 1618, Church Street Station, New York 8, N.Y. They will send you a kit for one dollar.

SECRETARIES NEEDED

Young ladies who are wondering about their future and are hesitant about the cost of college should be giving much thought to the lack of capable secretaries that exists today, and obviously will continue to be a problem for busy executives. And we said "capable".

What should she be able to do? She should have a reasonably good background of knowledge concerning general subjects, otherwise she cannot intelligently prepare letters or understand her employer's relations with a variety of people and problems.

She should be able to spell and to properly construct a sentence. She should have a vocabulary so that she not only will know what the boss is saying when he dictates a letter, but she may be able to make corrections in his wording that otherwise could be embarrassing or costly.

She obviously should not chew gum. If she has had any family training at all she has been told not to talk with her mouth full, even at the dinner table. Why should she talk to customers with a cud of gum in her teeth? It shows up especially

BIG JOB. If you want to see a major earth-moving project drive down to Tionesta on a Sunday afternoon and see the work being done for the new bridge. Not only is the bridge now coming into form, but across the river a big share of the mountain has been removed to create a triangle which will handle traffic from and to the bridge, and branching off toward Titusville and Oil City.

Vaccination Against Bug Bites

By Inez Robb

No one can deny that we live in the best of all possible worlds when a genius, Herbert Hermann Bauer of Middletown, Conn., receives a patent from Uncle Sam for a one-hand lipstick.

Mr. Bauer's contention that all previous lipsticks have required a two-hand operation is quite correct. This is a major problem to which I had never given much thought until I read about his splendid invention. But clear on the telephone, and a telephone voice today is a major asset.

She not only should take typing and shorthand, but she should work a little harder than is required to pass those subjects. Passing isn't enough. She will be asked for speed and accuracy, and she can't lie about them because the proof is too apparent.

Proof of the shortage of these capable young ladies is the current demand for imported British girls. Employment agencies say the English ladies are very popular with American executives, and every year several hundred come here for the enticing wages paid.

According to "Everybody's Business", published by I.C.S., which has had much experience in the field of education, employers say that, "in addition to her marvelous accent the English girl possesses an extreme politeness. Too many American secretaries, it seems, are rude, gum-chewing, hair-combing, flat-spoken, . . . can't spell and, what is worse, can't talk. So it's rather a welcome change for the boss to hear the Queen's English spoken as it should be."

MERGER CONSIDERED

It pleases this editor that the Warren area townships and Warren borough are giving serious consideration to the advantages of changing to a merger or a union district. The state offers greater help to those who make this progressive step and truer representation results on the board. We believe the new high school would be a better building than it is if the voting on much of its planning had been done democratically. Either a merger or a union provides a better means of learning the wants of a board's constituents.

I now realize that only an acrobat could deal one-handedly with the current crop of lipsticks.

And I am likewise terribly impressed with the invention of an atomic clock that will aid the first astronaut to check the accuracy of the instruments in his cocoon and to time correctly his arrival back in the earth's atmosphere.

The clock will also offer a partial test for the Einstein Theory of Relativity while it is whirling around in a satellite, all of which makes it a pretty versatile clock and a good bit more sophisticated than the one at Chez Robb that turns the coffee percolator on at 6:45 a.m. every working day.

Furthermore, I am considerably impressed with the men who have invented a way to build prescription eyeglasses into a gas mask for the individual user. And there is Edward H. Arnold Jr. of New Orleans who has just patented a magnetic checker set.

So the world's business is getting done and at a fast clip. And while all the above impresses me tremendously, the latest scientific development that has me jumping up and down with joy is the perfection of a new dog food that is fatal to any flea that subsequently bites Towser.

The anti-flea ingredient, locked into the deepdown goodness of this new dog food doesn't harm Fido at all. The anti-flea element simply saturates the dog and is death on fleas that bother him at their peril in the future. The U. S. Agriculture Department has just announced this discovery of Dr. R. J. Goulding of the Oregon Experiment Station, Corvallis, Oreg.

It is obvious that Dr. Goulding has got hold of something bigger than himself, any dog or a flock of fleas. If an anti-flea mickey can be harmlessly slipped into a dog biscuit, is it too much to hope that within a few years man can munch a meal that will make him fatal to mosquitoes, chiggers, black widow spiders, sand flies, gnats, ants and even fleas?

If man's best friend can be made insect-proof, why not man himself? A biscuit suitable for man or beast that will moth-and-mosquito-proof both would be a far greater boon to the vast majority of mankind than any atomic clock ever invented or even bifocals in gas masks.

Most men are willing to take Einstein's Theory on trust, since that's about the only sensible way the majority of us can deal with it. An eight-day clock will get most of us through our engagements as handily as an atomic ticker.

And a woman really intent on using a lipstick with finesse and artistry will probably always make a two-handed job of the business, no matter how many one-handed lipsticks flood the market. When a woman is really serious about lipstick, what is she going to do with that extra hand, anyway? Stir porridge? Cut the cards? Drive a car, perish forbid!

But a little something slipped into man's food or drink that would make him repugnant to the insect world would deliver him from misery, free him from so-called healing lotions, make garden parties endurable and fishing trips a pure pleasure.

Dr. Goulding is the man who serves the gold medal. If he can free Fido from fleas, surely he can fix it up so there ain't no flies on man.

RAY SMITH WILL MEET JOSEPH AT PENN SUNDAY

When nationally known Joe Joseph stages a bowling exhibition at the Penn Bowling Center this Sunday he will be scheduled to appear against three top local keglers in the afternoon and Ray Smith of the well known Erie Kohlers team in the evening.

The early exhibition will start at 3 o'clock when the locals will be Dave Fink, Bob Check and Al Johnson. Smith will match Joseph at 7:30 p.m.

Pete Juliano, who has just opened his newly remodeled alleys with automatic pinsetters, reports that the professional keglers will also offer tips of the game to those in attendance.

THE MEN

Dave Fink's 211-200 finish for a 591 bettered anything in the Commercial League at the Penn last night, although Al Johnson posted a high 213 game.

In the Merchants circuit Joe Hughes spilled a 558 high match.

THE LADIES

At the Penn Barb Weiland and Rose Juliano fired matches of 487 and 484 respectively to head the Ladies' Major League; Julia Rock was best in the Ladies' Minor with 470; and in Peg's it was Vivian Jones with 408.

THE WHS DRAGON BAND under director Harry Summers, made a fine showing for their first time out this season at the Warren-Corry grid contest on War Memorial Field last Saturday afternoon.

Area Sports

SCHOOLBOY FOOTBALL

Three Warren area high schools will be out to continue their success in the young school-boy football season this week end with one game on tap for Friday evening, Youngsville at Saegertown, and two games slated for Saturday afternoon, Franklin at Warren and Johnsonburg at Sheffield. The Eagles, Dragons, and Wolverines all won their season's openers in gridiron action last Saturday.

Under the arcs at Saegertown Dave Hilbert's Youngsville eleven will attempt some defensive improvement, a move stemming from their 38-26 defeat of Smethport. The Eagles, paced by a small group of returning letter-men, need to worry little about their offensive power, but must tighten up defensively.

On Memorial field Saturday the Blue and White of Ralph Veights face one of their biggest tests of the season when the defending Section Two champs, the Franklin Knights, invade the local turf. Warren will be at full strength for the tilt, but will have to be sharper than last week in the ball-handling department to pull out a win over the power-laden Knight aggregation. Last week end Franklin was defeated by strong Hickory high crew, 12-6.

In the eastern section of the county, the Wolverines of Sheffield, fresh after a 12-7 win over the Otto-Eldred combine, will play host to Johnsonburg. Coach Lou DeRubies of Sheffield will likely go with the same starting line-up used against Otto. Johnsonburg, under the "brains" of Frank Funair, has never been an easy touch in the Allegheny Mountain League and should provide stiff opposition for the Wolverines. In their opener against Bradford last week, they were dropped by a narrow 12-6 margin.

ERROR IN STARTING TIME OF TOURNNEY

In Wednesday's issue of the Observer it was erroneously reported that the final day's action in the Pennsylvania State Fishing tourney would begin at 6 p.m. Contestants entering the finals on Oct. 9 will be able to enter the waters of the Allegheny at 6 a.m., and must complete their day's fishing by 2 p.m.

On opening day, Saturday, Oct. 8, fishing will commence at 8 a.m. and will conclude at 10:30 p.m.

PREDATOR KILLS

Successful trappers and hunters in Warren County were paid $180 for the probating of seven grey fox and thirty-eight red fox during the month of August, according to a release issued by the Northwest Division of the Pennsylvania Game Commission. Four dollars each are paid for the extermination of each of these animals.

In the state 457 claimants were paid $8,130 from the Game Fund during the same time period, and since the beginning of the fiscal year, June 1, 1960, a total of $19,044 has been paid out.

MEN'S GOLF

Three weeks of competitive golf remain for the Conewango Valley Country Club swingers who yesterday put away another Thursday of action, topped by Pete Juliano's 37 and net 34's by Lloyd Cleveland and Bob Walsh in the first flight. In the second, Dr. Yerg had a net 32, and gross 41's were shot by Dean Anderson and Sam Rasmussen.

At net 36 in the third were Bill Simonsen, Jack Blair, and Joe Gobliger. Howie Colt shot a gross 45. In the fourth it was Dr. O'Connor with a net 38 and Carl Lundahl with a gross 47. In the fifth, Frank Schumacher had a net 35 and Harry Barley a gross 47.

The pro-amateur tournament planned for this Sunday has been postponed due to confliction of dates. It has been decided to hold the event of October 9th.

THE LADIES' GOLF

Reduced to nine holes of competitive play the ladies paid off for low gross at the Conewango Valley Country Club this week. Carol Blackman led the first division, Merle Donaldson the second, Evelyn Dahler the third, and Kay Frantz the fourth.

The last round and the closing dinner are scheduled for next Wednesday. Golf will start at 3:30 and dinner will be served at seven. Mrs. William Walker will be the chairman for the wind-up.

UPSET?

We fail to see why some journalists are terming the defeat of Billy Joe Patton by Fred Paine in the national amateur, an upset. Fred once was the assistant pro at the Conewango Valley Country Club. He returned amateur after leaving Warren and placed his game in the hands of the old master, Henry Picard, one of the nation's leading students of the game today.

Picard described Fred as one of the longest hitters in the game and a promising amateur who would go places. He did. He immediately won the Pennsylvania state amateur title and has done well in most state and national events in recent years. He has been considered as a potential United States representative in international matches.

Fred can match shots with any amateur in the game. When he wins it is not an upset in any company.

Avery or Sports

ROME, Sept. 12--Avery Brundage, who always goes first class, got up on his hind legs in Rome's luxurious Grand Hotel, fixed the well-fed members of the American Club with a glittering stare, and delivered himself of a stirring panegyric on the Spartan way of life. Fast living, the president of the International Olympic Committee warned, wagging a manicured finger, was threatened to reduce the United States to a second-class sports power.

Sitting there, ESPRESSO, and gumming there, DOLCE, his listeners heard the words of doom: "If it weren't for our great Negro athletes we'd be second class now. We are out-classed in half the events on the Olympic program."

The games were just winding up and Avery had been too busy hanging medals around manly American necks to tally the results. Otherwise he might have said the United States had been nowhere, as usual, in cycling, soccer, field hockey, and gymnastics, but had, as usual, slathered the rest of the world in the sports our guys enjoy.

To be sure, we had again "lost the Olympics" to Russia on the basis of unofficial point score which doesn't exist and which Brundage categorically rejects as "excessive nationalism" contrary to the spirit of the games. This can always be so; since there is no competition by nations, anybody who chooses may keep score for himself and it is perfectly possible for Russia, Ghana, North Borneo, or Uganda to win by a scoring system of its own devising.

The simple fact is that soft American living produced the best track team in the Olympics, the best swimming team, the best basketball team, three boxing champions, three wrestling champions, and a raft of other winners in fields where we have not done well in the past.

In 1936 the United States didn't have a winner in sixteen divisions of free style and Graeco-Roman rassing. This year Doug Blubaugh, the welterweight, Terry McCann, bantam, and Shelby Wilson, lightweight, picked off gold medals. A typical product of the soft life is Brubaugh, of the United States Army. He had to rassle Phil

Kinyon of Oklahoma State ten or eleven times to win a place on the team, so that by the time he got here he had enough experience to tie knots in seven opponents in a row.

Four years ago in far-off Melbourne where competition in some fields was limited because of travel costs, America won thirty-two gold medals, eight under the all-time peak attained in Helsinki in 1952. At the last count here, thirty-four of the gilt watch fobs had been packed for shipment to the United States, and a packing case of silver and bronze dnmicks testified to the team's improvement in depth.

Annual Red Leaf Rally To Be Held October 2nd

Invitations and entry blanks for the Eighth Annual Red Leaf Rally sponsored by the Auto Sports Club, Inc., of Warren, have been placed in the mail, it was announced today by Nathan T. Dreyer, activities chairman of the club and chairman of the Red Leaf Rally.

Scheduled for October 2nd, the Red Leaf Rally will start from Wilder Field in Irvine, and continue over a course approximately 100 miles long to the finish point at the nationally-known Castle Restaurant in Olean, New York.

Beginning at 10:00 a.m. and continuing until 11:45, there will be concourse judging at Wilder Field. A team of qualified judges will choose the first, second, and third most outstanding cars to enter the rally, and suitable trophies will be awarded at the banquet to follow.

There will also be trophies awarded for first through tenth places overall, first through third places in the ladies' class, for the car acquiring the highest number of points, as well as for the sports car club with the largest representation.

Consistently the largest rally east of the Mississippi, the Red Leaf annually draws nearly 200 cars from various parts of Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, and Ontario. The Red Leaf Rally is open to anyone who is interested in sports car rallying, and complete information may be obtained by writing Auto Sports Club, Inc., P. O. Box 295, Warren, Pennsylvania.

hundreds of cablegrams of encouragement poured in from the States, apparently in a sort of mass reaction against vituperative complaints about isolated defeats.

The cables were much alike, saying in effect: "Win, lose, or draw, we're with you." Chances are all were sincere, and one assuredly. It was signed "Household Finance Co." Over at Household, they're ALWAYS with us.

Near Misses

At least five additional gold medals escaped American clutches, either on official rulings or because somebody else came up with a performance never excelled in Olympic history. Almost surely, Lance Larson beat Australia's Tom Devitt in the 100-meter free-style swim and got jobbed by the placing judges. Dave Sime, anchor in the 400-meter relay, definitely hit the tape first but this victory was crossed out because of an illegal baton exchange.

Victory at 100 meters eluded Sime by six inches when Germany's Armin Hary equalled his own brand new Olympic record of 10.2 seconds. Les Carney was two feet behind Livio Berrutti when the Italian tied the world record at 200 meters. Until John Thomas came along, no high jumper had ever cleared seven feet in the Olympics. The kid from Boston did 7-0-1/4, and lost by three-quarters of an inch to Russians.

Nobody begrudged the winners their triumphs, least of all Berrutti, the first Italian to win an Olympic foot race since Luigi Becali twenty-eight years ago.

Faithful Household

In his curious spiel about soft living, Brundage plumped for a national sports program like those in Russia and her satellites. "Russia has 800,000 able gymnasts," he said. "We'd have trouble finding 800 in the U.S., or even 80."

These were surprising sentiments from the old watchdog of amateurism, who is not so naive as to believe that Russia's state-supported heroes are amateurs. We are not having any of that system, thanks, but our State Department does spend buckets of gold sending athletes abroad to help develop champions in other countries -- champions who will sometime whip our best in the Olympics.

The games were good and the American performances swell. The kids earned applause as

Your Forest Ranger

By Larry Stotz

Public hunting privileges in America today are the result of a New World concept of public ownership of wildlife that started with the first colonies.

This concept was in direct opposition to Old World traditions dating from the time of William the Conqueror who made the forests of England Crown property. Hunting in the Island Kingdom, therefore, became the pastime of royalty. So highly prized was this natural resource that poachers received the death penalty upon conviction.

In America all citizens are entitled to hunt and fish under State laws. Successful game management, however, is dependent upon the cooperation of landowners for a place to produce wildlife. Population pressures, with the rapid spread of urbanization, mean more hunters taking to the field but with less land to hunt upon.

With an ever increasing number of people hunting, it follows that greater pressure is placed upon public lands. Because of this, the 473,000 acres of public land open to hunting and fishing on the Allegheny National Forest will have to produce lots of fish and game in the years ahead.

The role that the Forest Service plays in the national wildlife picture is that of the habitat manager. The tenants -- the fish and game -- are the property of the people in whose States the National Forests are located. Likewise, the seasons and bag limits are fixed by the States. As habitat manager, the Forest Service must see that the National Forests provide food-bearing and cover-producing trees, shrubs, and other plant life, escape areas, and water -- all within daily range of the wildlife.

In the National Forests, wildlife is recognized as one of the five major renewable natural resources. The National Forests with their multiple-use principle of management provide a better habitat than unmanaged forests. Browse-eating animals, such as deer and elk, benefit greatly by the active timber sale program on the National Forests where hundreds of thousands of acres of timber are harvested annually to supply billions of board feet of timber products. The young growth that follows furnishes abundant feed and cover for wildlife.

Timber cutting is planned to create small clearings which benefit wildlife. Logging road rights-of-way are often purposely widened to provide edge effects helpful to many kinds of game. The high mountain expanses of the wilderness areas which cover 14 million acres, provide homes for some of the rare animals such as mountain goats and mountain sheep.

The concern for stable watersheds on the National Forests directly benefits fish life in the streams and lakes. Trout are sensitive barometers of the game husbandry being practiced on the National Forest watersheds; fish life requires clear, cool water free of silt.

Public hunting is at the crossroads today. More and more land is being posted with "No Hunting" signs. More people with more leisure time are seeking the sort of outdoor recreation that hunting and fishing provide, but find fewer places to enjoy these sports.

On 181,000,000 acres of National Forest land multiple-use management assures habitat for wildlife that will provide as much fish and game for harvest as possible. Here, the concept of public hunting that stems from colonial days in America will be kept alive for generations to come.

WADERS. Four fishermen walk into mid-Allegheny for their sport. Such scenes as this are prevalent along the area of stream in which the Pennsylvania fishing championship will be held, October 8 and 9. The official area is from the Irvine bridge to the Hickory bridge.

TWO-IN-ONE CATCH. When Albert Wood (r.) of Starbrick, snagged this 55-inch Muskies while fishing in Canada last week he had a surprise in store. Upon examining the big fellow's mouth, the tail of another fish was noticed. The cleaning operation revealed that the Muskies had swallowed a 24-inch Northern Pike.

Wood, using a Huskie Devle lure, pulled the 29-1/2 pound Muskies out of Nippisin Lavagne Lake in Ontario, Canada.

With him here is John Dailey of Dunn's Eddy, who helped pull the catch in.
